APPENDIX

Rachel is an Alcoholic woman who rides a train every day to go in the London where she works. She always went every day indefinitely until one day she is going to her office in a drunken state that resulted in her being fired from her office. Because it is drunk and makes a twist on where she works. Every time she rides the train she always observes one of the houses adjacent to Tom and Anna's house or her ex-husband. The home of Megan and Scott. Rachel is always looking at Megan and Scott from inside the train, as if she was jealous of Megan's life because she looks so happy but in reality is not like that Rachel imagined Megan had actually had a bleak past that she had to go to Psychiatrist namely D.R. Kamal Abdic.

A psychiatrist who is always trying to cure Megan from her illness. Until one day Megan disappeared and no one knows the loss of Megan Hipwell even her own husband does not know where it goes. The cause of death is very mysterious and sadistic. Because the culprit is not found by detectives. Until one day Rachel attempts to rise from her past with Tom, she attempts to remind her what exactly happened on Saturday night where Megan Hipwell was missing, so she was filled with blood And injuries to her body. But she didn't remember herself because that night she was heavily drunk. As the time went on she was constantly trying to recall her and finally she remembered him and found the evidence of who was actually the cause or person who killed Megan Hipwell. He is Tom, her ex-husband. Tom is a great liar, he hides the issue of his affair from his wife Anna, his affair with Megan until he has a son who was conceived by

Megan, but when Megan asks him to married her or ask in response, he instead asks Megan to abort her content, but Megan does not approve of it, which makes Tom furious and eventually his kills Megan Hipwell.
