APPENDIX

This novel is about an orphaned little girl named Anne who has a hard life. At age 11 years old she came to the Avonlea village because of a mistake. Two cousins, Marilla and Matthew Cuthbert, wanted to adopt a boy but got a girl because of a mistake by a passenger who gave a wrong message to Mrs. Spencer, who also wanted to adopt a little girl from a Nova Scotia orphanage.

Matthew was a little bit surprised when he came to the train station to get a boy but what he got was a girl. He is not that bad to tell that little girl named Anne that it was a mistake and that's why Matthew decided to bring that little girl to his place, Green Gables, at the Avonlea village for the night.

On the way to Green Gables Anne was surprised and dazzled by the beautiful things that she saw and imagined herself around there playing by herself with nature. Like, when she saw a beautiful lake she liked to give a name to that lake even when that lake already had a name.

When they arrived at Green Gables Marilla was surprised because she thought that would come was a boy, but when Matthew explained anything Marilla understood that, also Anne that made Anne really sad and cry. Finally Marilla decided to let Anne sleep in there and go to take her to Mrs. Spencer's house to explain anything and that mistake, but when they arrived there something happened and that made Marilla want to let Anne stay at their house.
